On 14 October, the World Health Organization issued a statement condemning Israel's order to evacuate 22 hospitals in northern Gaza, calling it a "death sentence." Doctors noted both the southern Gaza Strip's lack of hospital beds and the impossibility of transporting patients, such as newborns in incubators and patients on ventilators. Nevertheless, on 22 October, the IDF dropped leaflets in northern Gaza stating anyone who did not comply with the evacuation would be considered a "terrorist. Because of insufficient beds in the southern Gaza Strip and no means of transporting patients, such as newborns in incubators or patients on ventilators, the evacuation orders were widely regarded as impossible to comply with.

Israel's Defence Minister Yoav Gallant had ordered "a complete siege of the Gaza Strip," home to 2.2 million Palestinians, nearly half of them children. "There will be no electricity, no food, no fuel, everything is closed," he said. "We are fighting human animals, and we act accordingly." Israel's president Isaac Herzog accused the residents of Gaza of collective responsibility for the war. Oxfam stated Israel's use of "starvation as a method of war" was a violation of international law, and that Gaza was being "collectively punished in full view of the world."
